

The website is live and working

You can visit it now at <https://dailypostpk.page.gd>

What it does

Anyone can visit the site and read stories. Anyone can write one and submit it. It does not go online straight away — it waits for you. You sign in, read what was submitted, and either publish it or reject it. Once published, it stays on the site permanently for everyone to see.

That is the part that was missing before. Previously a story only existed on the writer's own computer, and nobody else could ever see it.

Someone writes → You review → Published → Permanent

What it looks like

It follows the design you sent: the featured story slideshow at the top, the daily digest and newsletter boxes, the most-read list, coloured category labels, and a light/dark switch. It works on phones as well as computers.

There are five short articles on it now so it does not look empty. They are written in the site's own voice and signed DailyPost Editorial — there are no invented authors. Please read them and tell us to change anything you disagree with, since it is your publication.

What it costs

Website hosting	Free	Already set up and running
Current address	Free	dailypostpk.page.gd — temporary dailypost.com.pk	~Rs 3,600	Two years, paid to PKNIC. Please confirm current price.

The domain is the only thing that costs money, and it has to be registered and paid for in your name. Once that is done, switching the site over to the new address takes about ten minutes and nothing else changes.

Two things you should know

Free hosting has limits. It is genuinely fine for now. If the site becomes busy, it is worth paying a small amount each month for something more reliable.

The site cannot send emails on the free plan. Nothing on the site needs to today, so nothing is broken — it just means features like "reset my password" would need a paid plan later.

What we need from you

1. Register and pay for dailypost.com.pk when you are ready.
2. Read the five starter articles and tell us what to change.
3. Tell us anything about the design you would like different.

The website is finished and working. The only outstanding item is the domain name.
